COMMODITIES TRADING

Trading commodities is an ancient profession with a longer history than trading stocks and bonds. The emergence of many empires can be directly related to their ability to create complex trading systems and facilitate the exchange of goods.

Currently, goods are still being exchanged around the world. A commodity exchange refers to both the physical place where goods are traded and the legal entities that have been established to enforce the rules of trading in standard commodity contracts and related investment products.

In recent years, some commodity exchanges have merged or gone out of business. Most exchanges trade several different commodities, although some specialize in one group.

LOGISTICS

In the dynamic world of logistics, Zeren Group shines brightly as a beacon of reliability, efficiency, and service excellence. Our presence in the industry is marked by a fleet of diverse tankers and a mastery of operations that support global supply chains, serving major oil companies and leading e-commerce giants.

Mostrade directly control a fleet and charter in capabilities to support the demands of the Commodities Trading team and complement each other towards offering a sustainable logistical solution at all times for the group.

The Logistics desk provides a 24/7 tailor made reliable approach with access to all sizes of dry cargo vessels (handy up to cape) and oil tankers/petroleum product carriers (stainless steel chemical tankers, MR1 up to VLCC) across the globe. We have an in-house chartering, post-fixing, operations and technical team with many years of international experience but we also hold long standing relationships with third party providers.

PROCUREMENT & SUPPLY
